

First Medical School of America.
Prof. James J. Walsh of the Fordham university school of medicine, recently contested the claim of the university of Pennsylvania school of medicine to have been the first medical school of America, and put forward the claim that it has been anticipated for nearly two centuries by the medical school of the university of Mexico. He has followed this by a study of the early hospitals in America, and in a paper read before the Cortez in 1524. He speaks of the universities established under the authority of the Spanish king in Lima and in Mexico, and of their work.
